WHERE HAS 2022 GONE? John Nunn

Autumn. Season of mists and mellow fruitfulness, according to the poet, By the time you get to read this, however, most of this season will be behind us and we will be heading towards winter...but what sort of a winter? According to the weather experts climate change will result in our experiencing hotter, dryer summers and warmer, wetter winters. Is it too much to hope that those who run our water companies and (with the exception of Dŵr Cymru/ Welsh Water) benefit financially very nicely, thank you, might start considering how they can store that extra winter wetness so that it can be distributed in leak-free pipes during our summer dryness? Answers on a postcard, please.

I had just finished writing this article when the country was shocked by the sad news of the death of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II. I look at Facebook fairly regularly, and saw a beautiful montage of the late Queen at various stages of her life.

It was posted by one Zane

Lewis. I have no idea whether he was its creator, but I am sure that whoever its talented creator was will not mind our using it to mark the end of a remarkable and eventful reign.

In our last edition I mentioned that a large ash tree on the boundary between our property and fellow Editorial Team member John Briggs was ailing and I suspected its days might be numbered. It's gone! Sadly, it is one of many which will disappear over the next few years following many which have already been taken down. A friend of mine has just returned form a holiday in Cornwall where apparently the ash die-back problem is also widespread, with whole hedgerows being uprooted. As with the elm in the '70s, this will result in large gaps and holes in our countries landscapes which will be filled in time by other trees, like the sycamore, and even some disease-resistant ash trees. Inevitably, the countryside will look different and, coupled with the likely effects of increasing numbers of hot dry summers, our land might be fairly unrecognisable to our grandchildren in a few decades' time.

Unless there is such a major change in attitude in the corridors of power and some business boardrooms we will need to plant quite different vegetation to survive the year. My lawn (and probably yours) is brown and very dry and crunchy underfoot. They say that it'll recover when it rains, but what if we have these droughts every year? I've no answers; these are just the abstract ramblings of someone commanded to create an opening article for The Puffin.

This leads me on to the main point. Regardless of the state of the countryside around us, The Puffin will continue to reflect the life and times of our little corner of paradise.

If we are unable to print due to financial shortcomings The Puffin will still be available on-line, edited and overseen by the same small league of gentlemen of certain ages...did I mention that we need new Editorial Team members?!

Note that no Westies were harmed during the production of the no-expense-spared cover for The Puffin 42...

Yes, dear reader, I've been cheating again.

Tilly had had a much-needed shampoo and haircut just before Christmas 2021, and was sitting in front of the fire wearing her Christmas bandanna. I took a few photographs, aided by some bribery in the form of dog treats, and forgot all about them until I was looking for something a few days ago and found them again. I spent an entertaining few minutes playing with Akvis Pastel software on my computer, and the result was a masterpiece in oil pastel for the price of a few chews. What was in it for Tilly? More treats, of course!

WHAT'S HAPPENING WHERE?

The last What's happening where? was our most comprehensive by far. Inevitably, we can't cover everything that's on, so if you think that an event is missing and should be mentioned, please make sure that you let us know in good time. Our 'submissions by' dates are always on the back page:

- 1 January for February
- 1 April for May
- 1 July for August
- 1 October for November

We want to support you, but we can't do so if you don't support us by feeding information to us...support us to support your community!

Our contact details are always given in Editorial information and other 'useful to know' stuff on the back page.

We'll point out the obvious, just in case...

- Keep an eye on local advertising and social media, Facebook and the like, because changes can affect events either way, some happening suddenly or cancelled just as suddenly.
- Check beforehand to make sure that an event is happening.
- Remember to take a mask with you.

Attention, voluntary groups!

Do you have opportunities to fill? You'll see that a couple of voluntary/charitable organisations have advertised in this number of The Puffin; see pages 7 and 17. If your organisation has opportunities to fill, think about placing an advertisement with us. Our contact details are always on the back page.

THE GOVERNOR'S QUICK CROSSWORD NO 10 (AGAIN)

We must apologise for omitting the down clues in The Puffin 41; they were there in the first draft, but fell off the page when The Puffin's typesetter had to reset some of the text.

FIANCHETTO 66'S CHESS NO 1

A REGULAR CHESS COLUMN...

The Puffin does crosswords, often with all of the clues. Now it's about to boldly go where no hand has set foot, and welcomes the first of a new regular feature, a chess column by Fianchetto 66.

We know who Fianchetto 66 is, but we're not telling...

2022 marks the 50th anniversary of Bobby Fischer's becoming world chess champion following his 1972 victory over Boris Spassky in Reykjavik.

This 'Match of the Century' had a similar effect on the public as the Netflix series Queen's Gambit, inspiring soaring sales of chess sets at the same time as bringing to an end 24 years of Soviet chess domination.

Truth was stranger than fiction in Reykjavik that year, with Fischer failing to appear for the second game of the match, and returning only when his demands for the third game to be played away from the cameras in a small room were met. For The Puffin's inaugural chess column we travel even further back in time, to a match played by Fischer in 1964 in Cicero, Illinois, when he played several opponents at the same time and created a particularly splendid checkmate combination against Daniel Kumro.

It is Fischer as white to play and mate in two moves.

Good luck...Fianchetto 66 .

• IT ALL BEGAN...

Tommy Miller, Llanddona Writing Group

For me, it all began when I was a little girl in Belgium. We knew they were coming. My father was a captain in the army and the discussions my little ears overheard made it clear to me that he had his duties but wanted my mother and me to get out, back to England.

Eventually we did, but it was a close thing and we never saw my father again for six years.

I remember being bundled into the back of a car with my mother and our suitcases. We zoomed off through the panicked streets as gunfire and the grey puffs of explosions grew bigger and louder. I knelt on the back seat looking out the rear window, holding on as best I could as we raced and skidded our way out of town. As I looked back, I saw what I could only describe as beautiful big white mushrooms drifting gracefully down from the clear blue sky, hundreds of them. It was surreal, like something out of a

www.seiriolalliance.co.uk/newsletters/

fairytale to me. Much later the penny dropped, and I knew what I saw were enemy paratroopers.

We made it over the last bridge out of town and as we crossed that slim safety line, the base of a large factory chimney was blown out by the incoming shelling. It became alive, fluid, and in its death throes, collapsed onto the road we sped along. We raced from out under its darkening shadow as if we were escaping a collapsing tunnel and cleared it, just, the back of the car getting peppered in stones, rubble and dust. This was the same bridge that my father was tasked to stay behind and hold as long as possible to let people escape before destroying it. Which he did, and was later captured and sent to a prison for officers. It was an evil looking castle on top of a mountain called Colditz, as if the fairies had got him, too.

12 May 1940: British troops and Belgian refugees on the Brussels-Louvain road (photograph F4422 from the collections of the Imperial War Museums, by Lt Kessell, War Office official photographer)

The first place we stayed in London was a single room in the basement of a large Victorian house. It was always so dark, but when the docks burned across the river we could see the light of the flickering flames reflected on the walls for four whole nights. My father was from proud farming stock and we had always had animals. So when we moved to a house with a garden, my mother managed to get hold of a goat for milk and cheese, and it was my job to graze her every day on the common, park or any good grass I could find. I have a distinct memory of standing with Gertrude, holding her rope leash as she happily munched away on the common's fresh grass. Looking around, even I felt self-conscious, a girl out of time, as the industrialised mechanised machines of war rumbled all around me.

One day, we got a letter from my father; he was out of prison and said we could come home. It was all over. Instead of a long trip by rail, sea and road, we got a flight back to Belgium in an RAF Lancaster bomber. It was so big, it looked like it could never get off the ground. But it did and I will never forget that the first time I ever flew was in this terrifying machine of war. It was loud and so cold inside but to see the

My father was thin and looked ill, but he was my Papa and his eyes shone bright, he was so happy to see us. Some months later I helped him dig up some of the family things he had buried for safe keeping. His grandmother's dinner service and canteens of cutlery, ornaments and vases, pictures of art and photo albums. All survived unharmed but for a pair of statues. The unprotected white marble had become stained by the red clay it was hidden in. Marked by war, like all of us.

Home was, for me, sitting in the second floor window with my legs dangling out as I gorged on the summer-ripe greengages growing up the wall of the farmhouse and then throwing the stones as far as I could. Not school, where the other girls would say, "See. The Roast Beef is dumb, she will not make a sound." And I wouldn't make a sound, especially when they pinched me or stuck pins in me.

But things change, and I grew. I got my medical degree from a fine Scottish university and became a doctor. And I would get my own animals, small farm, husband and then children to pass on the things that had once been passed on to me.

CATHY ROWLANDS: HONORARY BURGESS OF BEAUMARIS Richard Adams

In a ceremony in Beaumaris Town Hall on 22 July Llangoed's Cathy Rowlands was made an Honorary Burgess of the town.

It's an honour equivalent to the Freedom of a Borough or City, and was instituted in the local government reforms of 1974, partly to fill a gap left by the removal of Aldermen.

Cathy has been honoured mainly for her long service (45 years!) to Guides and Rangers, but also to the local church and the business community via her haberdashery shop, Nan's Place.

Since 1974 there have only been 16

Burgesses created here, and Cathy is the first woman to be honoured thus. It was a great event to witness, and a much-deserved honour. Cathy now has the challenge of finding a place to hang the very large, beautifully-calligraphed citation!

Important note We're not financial wizards, and are not attempting to give advice of any sort. We simply look into other sources of assistance that come our way, stuff that looks as if it might be useful for people who are facing financial hardship.

Lightning Reach With the cost of living crisis worsening, it is vital that those who are facing hardship can gain access to financial help quickly.

Lightning Reach was founded in 2020 during the COVID pandemic, and says that it has helped people get grants totalling more than £1 million so far.

It is a new one-stop on-line service that allows people in need to receive grants and other support from charities and local authorities.

Lightning Reach says that it is speeding up the process, in some cases cutting the time it can take from several weeks or even months to only a few days. Rising energy bills will push millions of people into 'unmanageable' debt, and the cost of housing, food and many other essentials will push many people into hardship, including people who have never had to seek support before.

Some of the charitable organisations that give out grants have antiquated systems, with many still using paper application forms that have to be returned by post, and this can make the process long and laborious.

Instead of requiring people to complete forms and return them with some form of ID, Lightning Reach's grants portal allows people in financial distress to do it all on-line, including ID verification.

Lightning Reach aims to match people to personalised support for which they may be eligible based on their circumstances, and allows them also to use the information provided across more than one application to other organisations.

Lightning Reach has received funding from organisations that include Innovate UK, the national innovation agency, and Nesta, the UK innovation foundation for social good.

BEAUMARIS ROTARY HUB:

AUTUMN UPDATE Kevin Sivyer

Tools for Africa Our corporate members, Seiriol Men's Shed, have been busy collecting 'Tools for Africa'.

Equestrian museum at Haulfre Seiriol Men's Shed has been selected to manage the development of an equestrian museum adjacent to Haulfre Residential Home, where they are based. Their well-equipped workshop couldn't be more convenient, being nextdoor to it!

This should be an interesting project as there are many classic equestrian and transport artefacts housed there which are being researched via Beaumaris Town and Isle of Anglesey CC records.

Read more about this exciting project on page 9.

October's Autumn Arts event you'll be able to read about the Autumn Arts event:

- 14 October: pop/folk concert with Kev, Miv and Dave and guests The Magee Brothers
- 15 October: Castle Players presentation of An Autumn

www.facebook.com/groups/llanddona/

Miscellany and The Eve of St Agnes

 15 October: Gala Charity Concert featuring the Goronwy Male Voice Choir and special guest artiste, soprano Ellen Williams, compèred by Virginia Crosbie MP that took place last month in the next number of The Puffin.

The Autumn Arts event was a major development for the hub and Beaumaris, and attracted much attention and sponsorship, including support from our MP, Virginia Crosbie, who compèred the Gala Concert.

Fireworks on the Pier Members of the hub are also involved in preparations for fireworks on Beaumaris Pier on 5 November which will benefit local charities.

Victorian Christmas Fayre The Victorian Christmas Fayre will make a welcome return over the weekend of Saturday 26/Sunday 27 November.

Beaumaris library grant We are pleased to report that we have just received a substantial Rotary district grant to supply furniture and electronic information equipment for a drop-in centre at Beaumaris library. You'll be able to read all about it in the next number of The Puffin.

SEIRIOL MEN'S SHED: AN UPDATE Mike Thomas

Our membership numbers are still lower than we hoped, but we're able to move steadily forward, doing tasks for our community whilst enjoying each other's company.

Part of our well-equipped workshop

Steve Jones has led the making of a smart new community notice board which is now attached to the Canolfan notice board in Beaumaris; it provides space for us and other community groups to announce activities.

Our well-equipped workshop enables us to undertake all manner of tasks, such as repairs to wooden tables, chairs and garden furniture. We have to charge for materials that we have to buy, obviously, but we offer our skills and knowhow free of charge.

All that we ask for is a small donation toward the running cost of our workshop.

We have many projects on the go, smaller and larger:

- The 'Tools for Africa' project is continuing.
- The polytunnel has been made ready at last for the addition of a polythene cover!

Hard at play over a cuppa and biscuits; Tilly visits occasionally in a supervisory capacity...

 Our workshop is better organised than ever, and has been readied for making planters and other items for the Llangoed Village Hall garden project.

Even in its present dormant state the museum is so interesting; the workmanship in the stables is beautiful...

- Our 'hobbies' room is ready for clay modelling, painting and drawing.
- We've adopted the iconic clock tower as our logo and heading.

When we're hard at work the result is some good stuff, like the recently-installed noticeboard at the Canolfan, Beaumaris (Steve Jones)

 We're making preparations to curate the small but amazing equestrian museum on the premises.

We'll be writing more about it as plans and work progress, so keep your eyes on The Puffin. We've still not found time for darts and dominoes, but we have the kit...one day soon!

There is so much potential for us and for the community, and so much to do. We can move forward only within our capabilities, which are limited by our numbers and the time that we can spare. We welcome new members with new ideas and new energy.

We are a small friendly group of men motivated by serving our Seiriol Community and enjoying the company that our group provides.

If you are interested, here's the what, where and when of it:

- Seiriol Men's Shed is for men aged 18-108.
- Currently we meet on Tuesdays and Thursdays, 10.00am-1.00pm.
- Times and days will expand to suit membership.

You'll find directions to Seiriol Men's Shed in What's happening where? on page 6.

Visit us, have a cuppa and a biscuit with us and ask us any questions you like!

A SUCCESSFUL MACMILLAN COFFEE MORNING...IN THE AFTERNOON!

Karen McNeil

The Beaumaris Christadelphians are a faith group who have been meeting in Beaumaris for over 50 years.

After meeting at the David Hughes Centre for many years, in 2021 we needed to find a new venue. Neuadd Bentref Llanddona Village Hall was where my three children went to school, so I was delighted when the opportunity arose to hold our faith group there. This wonderfully refurbished building is so much more than bricks and mortar to many in the village.

A lot of lovely cakes...

As a group we wanted to do something to reflect the passion and generosity of the local community and decided to host a Macmillan coffee morning.

We advertised the event locally, on Facebook and with fliers posted around the village, and held the event on Sunday afternoon, 2 October.

The cakes and sweet goodies were baked and donated by members of our faith group and the village. The tables looked spectacular, from the most impressive Victoria sponge I have ever seen to lemon drizzle, scones, brownies and flapjacks!

The turnout to the event was fantastic, and as the autumn sunshine poured in through the windows people kept coming into the hall. The Bible says that 'God loves a cheerful giver', and that is what happened in bucketloads.

The energy and joy in giving was overwhelming, and as people shared a favourite treat together the conversation flowed, and the room was filled with laughter. It was wonderful to see the room full and feel the fabulous atmosphere as people and pooches sat enjoying each other's company!

Thanks to everyone's kindness we raised £428.50 for Macmillan Cancer Care, and we would like to thank all who contributed to this sum. We hope to host further events in the future, so watch this space!

... being enjoyed by a full house!

• LLANGOED FLOWER AND VEGETABLE SHOW RETURNS NEXT YEAR

Julie Upmeyer

Next summer! We were pleased to announce in The Puffin 41 that the Llangoed Flower and Vegetable Show will be able to continue its annual celebration of local flowers, produce, cookery and artistic talent in Llangoed and beyond. You can plan your gardens and planting programmes with lots of time; we have agreed a date, 8 July 2023, for the show, to take place at Llangoed Village Hall.

There will be an array of categories in the show - flowers, vegetables, fruits, jams, preserves, cakes, photography, art and crafts - with specific categories for our younger members of the community as well.

The Show is believed to have been going for over 80 years now so I would also like to feature its history. Do you have any photos or memories of the show in years past? If you have, please share them with me.

If you have printed materials, such as brochures, newspaper articles, photos or slides, do let me know and I can organise scanning them. Memories and recollections of past Shows are so important, too, so please get in touch if you were involved with the show at any time.

I'll be announcing the exact categories in the competition very soon, so please contact with me by e-mail or post and we can include you in our future announcements. Please let me know if you would like to get involved in any way to help us organise (judging, grant applications or general support).

Keep an eye on our Facebook page for updates.

Past winners at the Show Do you have any trophies, medals or prizes that are meant to be passed on to the next competition? The last awards were made in 2019; they should be returned for the 2020 Show, but that was cancelled because of the COVID pandemic.

Please get in touch if you have any to return so that we can collect them for the 2023 show.

• NATIONAL SUCCESS FOR BEAUMARIS ALLOTMENT HOLDERS Jill Anker

Two Beaumaris allotment holders have achieved success in the annual Wales National Allotment Society Photographic competition.

Keevan Anker won in the '30-second video of a plot' category with a video of his wife Jill's plot. This was the first time that he had entered the competition, so he was delighted to have had his video chosen.

Keevan said, "It wasn't easy managing to fit in all the different areas of Jill's plot in just 30 seconds. I ended up having to climb on top of her compost bin, which gave an elevated view of the plot."

It was success second time in a row for Jasmine Hughes when she won the Wildlife category with a delightful photo of a robin on her plot. Jasmine's plot is a

BEAUMARIS CHURCH: CHRISTMAS TREE FESTIVAL

Canon Robert Townsend

It's almost that time of year again, when we go to our cupboards, lofts, garages and sheds to rediscover our Christmas trees!

It has been wonderful in recent years that local groups and organisations have found the time to contribute time, trees, decorations and imagination so that we can celebrate the glory of Christmas as a community.

www.seiriolalliance.co.uk/newsletters/

This year, the Christmas Tree Festival will begin on Friday 9 December and conclude on Thursday 15 December. The theme for the festival this year is 'A Christmas Story'. We will be setting up the trees on Thursday 8 December.

If your group or organisation has not yet booked a space for a tree, please contact Rev Lesley Rendle.

BANGOR ROTARY NEWS

Pauline Kenyon, Bangor Rotary Service Team Leader

After a three-year gap due to COVID we were delighted to return to hold our annual Bangor Rotary Charity Fair on Beaumaris Green on August Bank Holiday Sunday.

Rainbow Jan in action (via Pauline Kenyon)

The focus for this event is to provide a free pitch for local charities and organisations to help them raise much needed funds for their own endeavours and project, so we were glad to fill the wonderful site with as many groups as we could possibly fit in. We were also thrilled with the positive feedback from these participants and to know that they had enjoyed the Fair, made good new contacts and raised significant funds for their own valuable work.

The tug of war (via Pauline Kenyon)

Bangor Rotary Club provided the entertainment for this really successful family day out, including music and dancing (led by the amazing dynamo Rainbow Jan) with live singing performed all day long by Rocking Ron from Llanpen (Llanfairfechan and Penmaenmawr) Rotary Club. There was also a popular tug of war competition for family members of all ages which provided great amusement for spectators and a great opportunity for dads to show off their skills...and a bit of cheating, too.

Rotary also provided many children's games and activities, plus 'bargain buy' stalls selling good quality children's toys, 'bags and bling', with the money going to support other charities. The few items that were left were donated to CamauBach, a mother and toddler group, and Tenovus Cancer Care and the Red Cross charity shops.

The event was opened by Beaumaris Mayor, Councillor Neil Gough, who said how delighted he was to see The Green being used once more for this event. The sun shone brightly all day long and the attendance was high, with many families staying all day, enjoying the happy atmosphere.

After packing everything safely away at the end of a fabulous day all round, Rotarians and helpers enjoyed a fish and chip al fresco supper together on the green, ensuring that Bangor Rotary lived up to its reputation for fun and fellowship – as well as service!

LLANDDONA: CESTYLL TYWOD Gŵyl y BANC AR y TRAETH Rev Lesley Rendle

C Beth sydd â chornet hufen iâ, tancer olew, draig a chrocodeil yn gyffredin?

A Mi fyddech chi wedi dod o hyd iddynt i gyd ar draeth Llanddona ddydd Llun Gŵyl y Banc fis Awst.

Na...doedd hi ddim yn rhyw ryfedd ddigwydd ond yn hytrach Cystadleuaeth y Castell Tywod, a drefnwyd eleni gan aelodau Eglwys Llanddona.

Daeth cyfanswm o 18 tîm i mewn. Dewison nhw eu caeau, roedd y seiren yn swnio am 3.00pm a dechreuwyd cloddio. Roedd gan dimau awr a 15 munud i gwblhau eu dyluniadau, a chyflogwyd amrywiaeth eang o strategaethau a thechnegau. Roedd rhai timau'n ffafrio offer garddio o faint llawn, tra bod eraill yn dibynnu ar fwcedi a rhawiau glan môr mwy traddodiadol. Daeth un tîm hyd yn oed â digger John Deere bach i gynorthwyo.

Roedd gan rai timau ddyluniad a chynllun meddwl da ar gyfer eu hadeiladu – roedd un tîm wedi cael rhediad dummy y diwrnod cynt – tra bod rhai yn ffafrio'r dull mwy hyblyg a rhydd. Roedd y rhan fwyaf o dimau fel petaent yn dibynnu ar y plant i orchymyn arddull a dylunio, tra bod oedolion yn gweithredu'n ddyletswyddus fel llafurwyr ac yn synhwyrol fel y dywedwyd wrthynt!

Ni wyddai dychymyg y plant unrhyw rwymau wrth i ni glywed y straeon y tu ôl i'r cestyll: un yn bentref lle cynhaliwyd yr holl lawenydd yn y castell canolog; roedd un yn gastell caerog iawn gyda thwneli, rhagfuriau a phontydd codi i ddelio ag unrhyw fyddinoedd goresgynnol; roedd gan un arall system gymhleth o ddyfrffyrdd a llynnoedd i gyflenwi'r pentrefwyr â dŵr ac roedd grisiau wedi'u gwneud o gregyn rasel, pontydd, tyrau a waliau, heb sôn am y dref gyfan dan fygythiad o'r crocodeil!

O'r top: cyntaf, ail a thrydydd mewn cystadleuaeth gref iawn From top: first, second and third in a very strong competition (iCloud: Shared by Robert Townsend; www. icloud.com/photos/#07327szv26g1xZ7ci6Hjwrq Zw)

Canon Robert Townsend a minnau oedd â'r dasg amhosib o farnu tri uchaf. Yn y diwedd y cerflun o ddraig enillodd, ond roedd gan bawb felltithion ac aethant adref gyda gwên ar eu hwynebau a thywod yn eu hesgidiau.

Rydym yn bwriadu cynnal y digwyddiad eto ddydd Llun Gŵyl y Banc fis Awst nesaf, felly mae gennych flwyddyn i ymarfer eich dyluniadau...

LLANDDONA: BANK HOLIDAY SANDCASTLES ON THE BEACH Rev Lesley Rendle

Q What have an ice cream cornet, an oil tanker, a dragon and a crocodile got in common?

A You would have found them all on Llanddona beach on August Bank Holiday Monday.

No...it wasn't some strange happening but rather the Sandcastle Competition, organised this year by members of Llanddona Church.

In total 18 teams entered. They chose www.facebook.com/groups/llangoed their pitches, the siren sounded at 3.00pm and digging began. Teams had one hour and 15 minutes to complete their designs, and a wide variety of strategies and techniques were employed. Some teams favoured fullsized gardening tools, while others relied on more traditional seaside buckets and spades. One team even brought along a mini John Deere digger to assist.

Some teams had a well-thought out design and plan for their construction – one team had had a dummy run the day before – while some preferred the more flexible and freestyle approach. Most teams seemed to rely on the children to dictate style and design, while adults dutifully acted as labourers and sensibly did as they were told!

The imagination of the children knew no bounds as we heard the stories behind the castles: one was a village where all the joy was held in the central castle; one was a well-fortified castle with tunnels, ramparts and drawbridges to deal with any invading armies; another had a complex system of waterways and lakes to supply the villagers with water and there were staircases made from razor shells, bridges, towers and walls, not to mention the entire town under threat from the crocodile!

Canon Robert Townsend and I had the impossible task of judging a top three. In the end the dragon sculpture won, but everyone had sweets and went home with smiles on their faces and sand in their shoes.

We plan to hold the event again next August Bank Holiday Monday, so you have a year to practice your designs...

RALI TRACTOR LLANIESTYN 2022 Lucy Low

Cynhaliwyd ail Rali Tractor Llaniestyn ar 13 Awst 2022, diwrnod anhygoel o boeth.

Dyma gefndir byr i ddatblygiad y digwyddiad pentref gwych hwn. Daeth y syniad drwy lawer o drafodaethau dros ambell gwrw yn yr Owain Glyndŵr gyda Now Roberts, Hendre Boeth. Y catalydd oedd COVID, a'n gadawodd gydag amser sbâr ar ein dwylo i adnewyddu hen beiriannau annwyl ond rhydlyd yn yr ysgubor! Y pwrpas oedd y newyddion digalon bod y ddwy eglwys yn y pentref yn gofyn am waith adfer mawr; ynghyd â nifer sy'n lleihau o addolwyr rheolaidd, gallai hynny fod wedi golygu y byddai'r eglwysi'n cau.

Roedd ein tractor yn perthyn i Fferm Cefn ac roedd wedi gweithio'n galed i Mr Price Staples, ac yn ddiweddar ar gyfer Gwilym Price Staples a fu farw ym mis Awst eleni. Roedd Gwilym a'i deulu yn ymwneud â nifer o ddigwyddiadau pentref, fel y treialon carnifal a'r ci defaid, digwyddiadau nad ydynt, yn anffodus, mewn bodolaeth bellach. Dwi'n siŵr y byddai Gwilym wedi bod wrth ei fodd yn gweld ei hen dractor yn teithio ar hyd lonydd y wlad ac yn stopio am hufen iâ!

Y tractor hynaf yn y Rali, David Brown Cropmaster, yn cael ei yrru gan Dafydd Humphries

The oldest tractor at the Rally, a David Brown Cropmaster, driven by Dafydd Humphries

Yn wir, cawsom dractor arall hefyd, sef David Brown Case 1594, wedi'i yrru gan Mr David Lloyd. Roedd yn eiddo i ffermwr a elwid yn Gwyn Parciau yn y gorffennol, a chafodd hysbysrwydd yn 1988 ar ôl iddo fod yn rhan o ymgyrch heddlu i fynd i'r môr yn agos i Benmon. Gallai'r tractorau gweithgar hyn adrodd cymaint o hanesion am waith caled a bywyd ffermio!

Rhai o stondinau Neuadd Bentref Llanddona Village Hall

Some of the stalls at Neuadd Bentref Llanddona Village Hall

Bellach am y diwrnod ei hun: dechrau disglair a cynnar yn yr Hen Ysgol, gyda chriwiau a lluniaeth bacwn, ac amrywiaeth helaeth o stondinau wrth geisio sefydlu yn yr haul: Llysiau Tom, cacennau eglwys, cynnyrch lleol, dillad Unique Kids a Tir Dewi tombola. Mae Tir Dewi yn elusen sy'n cynnig cefnogaeth i ffermwyr a'u teuluoedd drwy gyfnodau anodd.

Yn anffodus, bu'n rhaid gohirio'r Sioe Gŵn Hwyl a gynlluniwyd fel rhan o'r rali oherwydd y tywydd eithriadol o boeth. Gobeithiwn drefnu dyddiad newydd yn y dyfodol agos.

Roedd 45 o gerbydau anhygoel o bob rhan o Ynys Môn a thu hwnt yn cymryd rhan...o hen dractorau (yr hynaf, wedi'i yrru gan Dafydd Humphries, gan fod yn David Brown Cropmaster) i dractorau mawr newydd sgleiniog (a New Holland T6145 a yrrwyd gan Iwan Owen a'i deithiwr Chloe), a chyn-filwrol 1974 Land-Rover, trwy garedigrwydd Mr Simon Millichamp, y bu angen ychydig o help ar y ffordd gyda digon o gerbydau parod i'w cynorthwyo. Fe wnaeth y gyrwyr osod yn arfog gyda photeli o ddŵr, ond tua diwedd y rhediad dyma'r tractorau oedd angen dŵr i oeri eu peiriannau...

Roedd y llwybr eleni ym Miwmares, a Chartref Preswyl Haulfre yn Llangoed, lle'r oedd y trigolion oll yn troi allan i godi calonnau'r tractorau, gyda lluniaeth i'w groesawu gan Sioned, Hendre Boeth, a'i ffrindiau. Roedd yr adran golygfaol drwy'r Parc Ceirw ym Mhenmon drwy ganiatâd caredig Syr Richard Bulkeley; roedd y golygfeydd tuag at Ynys Seiriol yn anhygoel. Liz Pritchard o Gaban y Traeth, Llanddona, yn garedig iawn roes rew choc llawn gwerthfawrogi llawer i oeri'r gyrwyr i lawr ar gymal olaf y daith.

Cafwyd croeso hyfryd i'r cerbydau gan y torfeydd yn yr Owain Glyndŵr, gyda bar awyr agored a cherddoriaeth fyw gan MônSŵn ac, yn hwyrach ymlaen, gig o'r Adelphi newydd a lleol iawn, a chafwyd rhost hogiau blasus yn cael ei ddarparu gan Hog's Môn. Roedd yn ddiweddglo perffaith i ddiwrnod gwych ar noson hyfryd o haf.

Faint godon ni?... dros £4,300! Mae hon yn swm gwych, ddylai sicrhau y broses o adfer Eglwys St lestyn. Os ydych chi'n lleol i Landdona mae'n debyg y byddwch chi'n gwybod bod Eglwys Champing St Dona wedi'i harchebu'n llawn drwy'r tymor, ac mae'n gadarn ar y map fel yr eglwys gyntaf yng Nghymru i ddarparu'r profiad unigryw hwn. Mae rhoddion hefyd yn mynd i elusen Little Hearts Matter, a gobeithiwn y byddwn yn gallu cefnogi elusennau lleol eraill os gallwn barhau i gynnal digwyddiadau o'r fath.

LLANIESTYN TRACTOR RALLY 2022

Lucy Low

The second Llaniestyn Tractor Rally was held on 13 August 2022, a scorchingly hot day.

Here's a brief background to the development of this great village event. The idea came about through many discussions over a few beers at the Owain Glyndŵr with Now Roberts, Hendre Boeth. The catalyst was COVID, which left us with spare time on our hands to renovate much-loved but rusty old machines in the barn! The purpose was the depressing news that both churches in the village required major restoration works; combined with a dwindling number of regular worshippers, that could have meant that the churches would close.

Our tractor belonged to Cefn Farm and had worked hard for Mr Price Staples, and latterly for Gwilym Price Staples who sadly passed away in August. Gwilym and his family were involved in many village events, such as the carnival and sheepdog trials, events that are sadly no longer in existence. I'm sure Gwilym would have been delighted to see his old tractor travelling along the country lanes and stopping for an ice cream!

Maen nhw i ffwrdd! Dim ond rhan fach o Rali Tractor...

They're off! Just a small part of the Tractor Rally...

Indeed, we also had another tractor, a David Brown Case 1594, driven by Mr David Lloyd. It was previously owned by a farmer known as Gwyn Parciau, and gained notoriety in 1988 after being involved in a police chase into the sea close to Penmon. These hard-working tractors could tell so many tales of hard work and farming life!

Now for the day itself: a bright and early start at yr Hen Ysgol, with bacon baps and refreshments, and a great variety of stalls setting up in the shade away from the sun: Tom's Veg, church cakes, local produce, Unique Kids clothing and a Tir Dewi tombola. Tir Dewi is a charity that offers support for farmers and their families through difficult times; see The Puffin 39, page 10.

Unfortunately, the Fun Dog Show that was planned as part of the rally had to be postponed due to the extremely hot weather. We hope to organise a new date in the near future.

45 amazing vehicles from all over Ynys Môn and beyond took part...from old tractors (the oldest, driven by Dafydd Humphries, being a David Brown Cropmaster) to big new shiny tractors (a New Holland T6145 driven by Iwan Owen and his passenger Chloe), and an exmilitary 1974 Land-Rover, courtesy of Mr Simon Millichamp, which needed a little help en route with plenty of willing towing vehicles to assist. The drivers set off armed with bottles of water, but towards the end of the run it was the tractors that needed water to cool their engines...

This year's route took in Beaumaris, and Haulfre Residential Home at Llangoed, where the residents all turned out to cheer the tractors, with welcome refreshments provided by Sioned, Hendre Boeth, and friends. The scenic section was through the Deer Park at Penmon by kind permission of Sir Richard Bulkeley; the views towards Puffin Island were amazing. Liz Pritchard of the Beach Cabin, Llanddona, kindly provided much-appreciated choc ices to cool the drivers down on the last leg of the journey.

Roedd hi'n brysur yn yr Owain Glyndŵr y noson honno...

It was busy at the Owain Glyndŵr that evening ...

The vehicles were met with a lovely welcome from the crowds at the Owain Glyndŵr, with an outdoor bar and live music from MônSŵn and, later on, a gig from the new and very local up-andcoming Adelphi, and there was a delicious hog roast provided by Hog's Môn. It was a perfect end to a great day on a lovely summer's evening.

... ac roedd MônSŵn ar fin barod i berfformio... ...and MônSŵn were just about ready to perform...

How much did we raise?...over £4,300! This is a fantastic sum, which should secure the restoration of St lestyn's Church. If you're local to Llanddona you'll probably know that the Champing Church of St Dona was fully booked through the season, and is firmly on the map as the first church in Wales to provide this unique experience. Donations are also going to the charity Little Hearts Matter, and we hope that we'll be able to support other local charities if we can continue to put on such events.

'Thank you' on behalf of Bro Seiriol Churches!

ANGLESEY PIG'S SNOUT AND GOOSE'S ARSE Andrew Perrott

Lest you think that I'm lowering the tone of The Puffin, I'm referring to two varieties of Welsh apple. Now read on...

I learned about Anglesey Pig's Snout/ Trwyn Mochyn late in August in one of those conversations with a neighbour that takes an odd turn and sets one to thinking.

I was admiring this neighbour's apple tree and its crop of large and chunky pink-blushed green apples. "It's called Anglesey Pig's Snout," he said...and my snouting on-line for information about it showed that he was correct. One lives and learns.

Anglesey Pig's Snout is a large green cooking apple, long grown on Anglesey, being recorded first in the 1600s. It's named thus because of its unique shape; when seen on the tree there's certainly a passing resemblance to a snout. It's a good cropper and is disease-resistant.

It cooks to a robustly flavoured, slightly perfumed purée, and needs a little additional sugar. Wrapped in pastry and baked, it was often eaten as dumplings puffinpages@gmail.com

in the field by agricultural labourers.

Wales has quite a variety of apples, including Pig's Snout/Trwyn Mochyn, Pigeon's Beak/Pig y Golomen, Nant Gwrtheryn, Morgan Sweet, and the delightfully-named Goose's Arse/Tin y Gwydd.

The latter variety is 'named after its shape, not its flavour', and it originated in Dyfed in the early 1900s. I couldn't find a picture, but a reference said that there's some resemblance shared by the medlar, also known as Dog's Arse in Use your imagination and you might see the lower end of the apples' resemblance to a pig's snout certain quarters, so you'll have to let your imagination run free.

Finally, there's also the Bardsey Island Apple/Afal Enlli, which was discovered only in 1999. It's found nowhere else in the world, and is believed to date back to the 13th century when it was grown by monks.

There seems to be quite a history of cider apples and perry pears in Wales; a £500,000 lottery-funded project in the late 2010s discovered 73 previously unrecorded varieties, bringing the total number of varieties native to Wales to 101. It was undertaken by the University of South Wales and the Welsh Perry & Cider Society.

NATURE NOTES: INSECTS Roz Hattey

A persistent and chilly breeze from the north in mid- and late September has been reminding us that autumn really has arrived. The leaves of horse chestnuts, limes and beeches were beginning to change colour and flutter to the ground. In parts of the country where the summer drought has been severe many trees have been protecting themselves by starting a much earlier leaf-fall.

The first two weeks or so of September were still warm and humid here, allowing bees, hoverflies, butterflies and dragonflies to continue flying, feeding and breeding.

I watched around a dozen striking red and black red admirals (Vanessa

Also still on the wing were the slightly larger painted lady (Vanessa cardui), an annual migrant from north Africa and the Middle East which breeds in Britain, and the neat small tortoiseshell (Aglais urticae).

back and forth across the pond dipping her abdomen 'tail' below the water surface as she lays her eggs into sedge leaves. A smaller male common darter (Sympetrum striolatum) displays his bright orange body as he perches on a sunny rock at the water's edge.

On the pond surface flurries of whirligig beetles (Gyrinus natator) agitate the water as they skim round and round. They feed mainly on even smaller insects which fall onto the water.

www.facebook.com/groups/llanddona/

Sometimes they dive and their eyes are divided into two parts so they can see across the water surface as well as down into the water. Dozens of tiny, immature water-snails, including a species of ramshorn, are sheltering amongst the floating duck-weed roots as I try to thin them out. It takes time to rescue the snails but they do play an important role in maintaining water quality by feeding on organic debris and algae.

17 September 2017: several red admirals (Vanessa atalanta) feeding from ivy (Hedera helix), ivy is the last major food supply of the year for insects, and attracts butterflies, bees, wasps and all manner of flies

I haven't yet spotted a great diving beetle (Dytiscus marginalis) this year darting around in the new pond, but they will no doubt soon colonise it from the well-established pond nearby. At 38mm long these are the largest of our water beetles, and are voracious predators, both as adults and in the developing larval stage. They will devour frogs, newts and fish so perhaps I shouldn't be quite so pleased when I do spot one!

Britain and Ireland have far fewer butterflies than the rest of Europe: around 60 resident species compared to about 440 species. There are many, many more species of moth than there are butterflies in Britain and Ireland. More than 880 naturally occurring macro-moths (the larger species) are illustrated in The Field Guide to Moths of

Britain and Ireland (3rd edition, 2017, Bloomsbury) but others are not illustrated, and more have probably been recorded since then...and then there are the numerous micro-moths which are described in a separate fieldguide.

Moths are generally unknown to most of us, most of them being nocturnal, some of them being very small and some difficult to identify. Keen amateur naturalists and professional entomologists often develop a life-long interest in recording moths by setting up moth-traps with special lights that attract the night-flying insects.

The great variation of size, shape, colour and intricate wing patterns is wonderful. Moths are important pollinators and they also provide food for hunting bats. One of the most exciting day-flying moths is the humming-bird hawkmoth (Macroglossum stellatarum). One appeared again in a friend's garden in Beaumaris this summer and fascinated us with its incredibly rapid wing-beats as it hovered around a honeysuckle flower...just a blur of greyish-brown wings with orange flashes near the soft, downy body.

A humming-bird hawk-moth (Macroglossum stellatarum) feeding from buddleia flowers (https://butterfly-conservation.org/moths/ humming-bird-hawk-moth; Steve Maskell)

Let's give some thought to spiders, too. They are not insects, having eight legs instead of six, but they are a large group of invertebrates to be found almost everywhere: in our homes and gardens, in urban spaces and particularly in uncultivated ground from mountain-tops to the sea-shore. There are currently around 680 species in Britain, but there are many more in northern continental Europe. Like the moths, spiders are divided into two broad groups, the 'micros', consisting mostly of the money spiders (the Linyphiidae family) while all the others, the majority, being 'macros' and generally a little easier to identify.

All spiders are predators and can be beneficial to humans, for instance by reducing insect pests in arable fields. They also provide food for many other animals so play an important role in most terrestrial ecosystems.

Interestingly, the water spider (Argyroneta aquatica), quite common and widespread in Britain in ponds and slow-flowing streams, is the only species in the world known to live almost completely underwater.

Spiders are amazingly varied and intriguing creatures in appearance and behaviour, and they deserve to be better understood and valued.

House martins (Delichon urbicum) seemed to do particularly well this year in the town, with some new, or repaired, nests occupied on the front of Victoria Terrace as well as in Castle Street, helped by a long spell of warm, humid weather in August. They were feeding well on flying insects, sometimes high in a clear sky, sometimes very low as grey clouds drifted across.

A local brood of swooping, darting swallows (Hirundo rustica) joined the flickering flight of the house martins in wonderful evening displays of insectfeeding birds. Early in September they had gone, quite suddenly it seemed this year, and I miss their twittering presence overhead. These have all been rewarding observations, but all is not well in the world of insects and other invertebrates.

We often hear now of surveys from around the world reporting huge declines in insect populations in recent years. The causes are complex but are basically due to a wide range of human activities. If unchecked, the consequences of this decline will be catastrophic. As Sir David Attenborough says, "If the invertebrates were to disappear, the world's ecosystems would collapse". Much of our agriculture, horticulture and food production would also be in peril. It is estimated that insects pollinate one third of all crops eaten by humans. Even house flies and mosquitoes are valuable pollinators! Insects also control crop pests, remove waste and provide food for other animals.

In the UK, Buglife, the invertebrate conservation trust, has launched a campaign to try to resolve the crisis of insect declines. Buglife has worked with Kent Wildlife Trust to undertake a citizen-science survey using insect samples taken from vehicle numberplates. A 'splatometer' grid is used to count the insects squashed on numberplates after each journey during June, July and August. Their 2021 Technical Report shows that the abundance of flying insects in the UK has fallen by nearly 60% over the last 17 years (you could download the Bugs Matter app to take part in the survey, which will no doubt continue next year). Most of us older folk clearly remember masses of insects being squashed on the windscreens of our parents' cars or our own cars as we drove along in past decades. Even more worrying, the Report's findings are in line with research reporting declining trends in insect populations globally.

May 2017, Loch Leven: a swarm of midges (Scottish Natural Heritage: Gus Routledge/The Scotsman)

Buglife reports that a recent wellpublicised review concluded that current rates of decline in insect populations could bring the extinction of 40% of the world's insect species over the next few decades. Among the most at risk are butterflies, moths, bees, wasps and dung beetles, as well as freshwater species such as caddis flies and mayflies. The rich diversity of species making up the world's ecosystems is breaking down and gradually being replaced by very mobile, pollutanttolerant generalist species.

Our own local observations can be worthwhile and even useful, especially if they can be linked in with existing recording schemes run by wildlife trusts, butterfly conservation or other conservation groups. Cofnod is the North Wales Environmental Information Service, collating wildlife data across North Wales. My own general observations this year include an absence of ladybirds in my garden (and only a handful last year), which may be related to low numbers of aphids, even on the roses (bad news for breeding birds like the blue tit); very few moths flying even on fine, warm nights; and very few wasps on the fallen apples and hedgerow blackberries. Perhaps other people have seen many more of these insects? I've been surprised, and

17 October 2020: Seven-spot ladybird (Coccinella septempunctata): Its wing cases (elytra) are red, punctuated with three black spots each and a seventh spot spread over the junction of the two quite disappointed, to find that the very small, non-aggressive wasps which flew in and out of a hidden nest under my flat roof last year have not appeared at all this year. Could it be that the heatwave has reduced wasp numbers? There was certainly a shortage of slugs, snails and other invertebrates for hedgehogs and thrushes during the very dry weather this summer. Young hedgehogs were found wandering around during the day and were underweight.

Natural populations of insects and other invertebrates need to be maintained so that they can continue to play their vital ecological roles and provide 'essential services' in the web of life. The United Nations produced a report in 2019 pointing out that we are losing the 'Little things that run the world'.

Pollution, habitat loss and fragmentation and climate change are major factors in insect declines, but much more research is needed to better understand the detail and just how insect populations can be restored.

A range of essential measures will include:

- protecting and expanding the best natural and semi-natural habitats, such as broad-leafed woodland, including tropical rainforests, unimproved grasslands, peat bogs and fens
- creating more and larger areas of habitat, such as the Great Fen restoration project in East Anglia
- creating or improving wildlife link corridors, such as hedges and copses
- promoting and funding (Government!) more sustainable farming methods, especially soil conservation, such as no-till cultivation to protect soil structure, soil invertebrates, especially earthworms, and reducing dependency on pesticides
- preventing/controlling pollution of land and especially of freshwater systems by agricultural and industrial chemicals, farm slurry, sewage and other nutrients
- persuading horticulturists and gardeners to stop or at least greatly reduce their use of pesticides, herbicides and peat
- creating more urban green spaces suitable for insects, such as groups of trees and shrubs, areas of wildflower grassland
- considering how to reduce the impacts of climate change, including flooding, 'wild' fires and drought such as by stopping water abstraction from rivers and streams when flows are reducing and reducing overall demand for water

Governments and people all round the world need to face these challenges in the very near future if populations of insects and other invertebrates are to survive and recover.

A LLANDEGFAN BENEFACTOR AND THE CHURCHYARD Jane Cherrett

I write to say how much I enjoy reading the articles in The Puffin, highlights being A pioneering flight at Llanddona beach: the Bamboo Bird (The Puffin 36, May 2021) and all of Roz Hattey's wildlife contributions.

Llandegfan has a story to share. Our Parish Hall is the work of H Harold Hughes, an architect who used to work for the Bangor diocese (for example, Hughes designed the War Memorial Cross on Church Island, Menai Bridge). The Hall was opened in 1904 and is in his Arts and Craft style. The land and Hall were given to the inhabitants by the Rathbone family in memory of Richard Reynolds Rathbone, a cotton trader who had worked in Egypt and then Liverpool, and who had retired to Llandegfan. The Hall was paid for by his wife, Frances Susannah, and the land was purchased by his son Hugh. There are large photographs of Richard Reynolds Rathbone and Frances Susannah in the hall foyer. Underneath there is a beaten copper fire surround designed and fabricated by another son, Richard Llewellyn.

The Rathbones were Liverpool industrialists. Richard Reynolds Rathbone was active in many charitable endeavours, such as the Liverpool School for the Deaf and Dumb. After retiring to Anglesey he held the positions of magistrate, Deputy Lieutenant and High Sheriff of the County.

On retiring, the Rathbones bought Glan y Menai, a fine house on the Beaumaris Road overlooking the Menai Straits, from his wife's family. The family were great benefactors, who used their wealth to improve the lives of local people. This included building the Hall and the Well House, and supporting St Tegfan's church and the school.

This year, Menai Bridge & District Civic Society's June outing included a talk in Llandegfan Parish Hall on the Rathbone family, given by Paul Smith, followed by a visit to the nearby St Tegfan's church. The large and extended Rathbone family were influential in setting up the Normal College and the University in Bangor. William Rathbone MP, cousin of Richard Reynolds Rathbone, was the second President of the University College Council. Mary Frances Rathbone, their daughter, was also on the College Council and had a special interest in women's education. Rathbone Hall on College Road, Bangor is named after her.

At the time of the talk, a mystery remained. We had a lot of evidence to say that Richard Reynolds Rathbone and his wife Frances Susannah had been buried in St Tegfan's churchyard, but after much time searching we were unable to find their graves.

Before: the wilderness in St Tegfan's churchyard (Paul Smith)

One area of the church yard had been left to go wild for many years with just bits of graves appearing in the undergrowth.

Church members Jane Cherrett and Paul Smith decided to try clearing the area with help from people recruited on Facebook and Nextdoor as well as by word of mouth. Now we have a small, dedicated working party, greatly enhanced by Howard Massey's brush cutter. We set about removing the brambles and ivy, and uncovered six rows of graves, many with elaborate crosses and stonework.

After: the transformation following the working party's hard work (Paul Smith)

The Rathbone grave was found on that first volunteer day, though sadly the cross had collapsed; however, the inscription was clear to read. At last Paul can complete his lecture, though other graves of the late 19th century date are of great interest. Names of longstanding Llandegfan families, house names, occupations and where they died, all tell of past times. Among them are Frederick Salis Schwabe, the son of a Jewish refugee who made his fortune printing cotton in Manchester, Thomas Fanning-Evans who was a mining engineer at Parys Mountain that his father had owned, and more of the Rathbone family.

The church yard is full of history as is the church itself, but that is another story.

CLWB RHWYFO BEAUMARIS ROWING CLUB: THE QUEEN ELIZABETH II MEMORIAL ROW Carol Hughes

As the racing season comes to an end the Club waits with bated breath for the announcement by the Welsh Sea Rowing of this year's winners of the Northern League. The Club has had an exceptional season, winning places in every rowing regatta it has entered.

On a more sombre note, however... Following the sad passing of HRH Queen Elizabeth II on 9 September 2022, the Club was pleased to accept an invitation to the Queen Elizabeth II Memorial Procession Row from Millwall to Ham, Richmond, on the River Thames, a course of 21.6 miles. Three Celtic Longboats with eighteen crew and a number of well-wishers made the journey down to London.

Saturday morning, the dramatic grey sky a fitting backdrop to the day. The ninetysix-round gun salute echoes in the distance. People journey in their thousands to Buckingham Palace to lay flowers or sign the Memorial Book. Two hundred rowing boats gather on the shore of the Thames. Two thousand rowers have made the journey, from France and Ireland, from the Netherlands and Wales, a true international presence of remembrance.

Cybi, the women's crew, takes her places in the procession (Gail Wolstenholme)

As the Thames fills with rowing boats, we are reminded of times gone by when ferry boats littered the waterfront and small rowing craft made their living on these waters. We are reminded, too, of the significant historical events that have been enacted up and down the Great River. The mood of the rowers is sombre, one of appreciation, in acknowledgement that this procession, too, is part of that long historical association with the River Thames. The flotilla starts from Millwall Dock and soon arrives at Tower Bridge, a fateful last journey for many, but not today. Today the procession celebrates, with many others, the life of the longestreigning British monarch.

Mabli, the men's crew, gathers pace as the flotilla passes Canary Wharf (Gail Wolstenholme)

Boats negotiate the tricky currents of Westminster Bridge, pass the Houses of Parliament, reassemble to pay respect to the old monarch and to celebrate the new: Charles III. The boats row under Lambeth Bridge, Battersea Bridge, Wandsworth Bridge, Putney Bridge, Hammersmith Bridge, Chiswick Bridge, Kew Bridge and finally Richmond Bridge, through to the end point below

Ham House, a famous site of political intrigue during the Civil War. As the procession makes its way down the river, people have gathered on the bridges and are sombre in their response, respectful of the procession's intent, in memory of Her Majesty the Queen.

Cybi reaches Tower Bridge (Pippa Thomas)

Clwb Rhwyfo Beaumaris Rowing Club is proud to have been part of this day of remembrance, and thanks everyone who made it possible...towers, rowers, coxes and organisers.

HEROES FROM OUR COMMUNITY WHO ARE NOT COMMEMORATED ON OUR WAR MEMORIALS: PART 2 Bridget Geoghegan

In November 2021 we put out Poppy Cards in Llangoed and Beaumaris to those who are not remembered on our War Memorials. Some were from this area but had moved away; others died as a result of their war service, but are not official war casualties (midnight on 31 August 1921 was the cut-off date for being an official casualty during the First World War; midnight on 31 December 1947 was the cut-off date for the Second World War).

In the last number of The Puffin I covered the First World War. In this number I cover the Second World War and others, like Frederik Mertens, of Malines, Belgium, who fled with his family to the UK. He died 5 January 1915, aged 13; see below.

Llangoed The Second World War:

Owen Roberts, of 5 Gorddinog Terrace, Llangoed, husband of Myfanwy Roberts of Llanddona; served as a driver in the Royal Army Service Corps; died 'at home'; buried in the churchyard of St Cawrdaf, Llangoed (Commonwealth War Graves headstone). Died 12 May 1940, age 28.

Capel Tŷ Rhys, Llangoed (Bridget Geoghegan)

David Prewer, of Aelfor, Penmon; educated at Barmouth and Beaumaris Grammar Schools; worked as a skilled engineer with Daimler (Bangor and Coventry); volunteered for service with the Royal Air Force (44 Squadron, flying Lancasters; Air Bomber); he volunteered after seeing the destruction in Coventry from Luftwaffe bombing; his plane was lost over Paris; commemorated on the Runnymede Memorial and family headstone at Capel Tŷ Rhys. Reported missing on 20 April 1944, age 22.

The Church of St Cawrdaf, Llangoed; it dates from the 17th century, and underwent renovations in the 19th century (Bridget Geoghegan)

Llangoed Others:

Frederik Theophil Hendrik Mertens, of Malines, Belgium, and Plas Llangoed; the family fled their home in August 1914 when the German Army invaded; they found refuge in Llangoed in October 1914; "One young lad of 13 was taken ill with diabetes, brought on by shock, and he died"; buried in the churchyard of St Cawrdaf; not an official war casualty. Died 5 January 1915, age 13.

Frederik's story is told on a panel to be seen at the Belgian Promenade in Menai Bridge; see The Puffin 33, page 15. Llangoed World War II, not on War Memorial: burial in the Churchyard of St Cawrdaf:

Driver Owen Roberts, Royal Army Service Corps, 5 Gorddinog Terrace, DriverT/119929, Royal Army Service Corps; died on Tuesday 21st May 1940 probably of disease or wounds, age 28; buried in the Churchyard of St Cawrdaf, Llangoed; son of Moses and Ellen Roberts of Gorddinog Terrace, Llangoed; married to Myfanwy of Llanddona.

Beaumaris The Second World War:

Llewelyn Greenly Jones, born at 5 Bryn Difyr, Bangor; his mother Edith was from Beaumaris; educated Bangor; worked in Lotus & Delta shoe shop, Bangor High Street; volunteered for the Welsh Guards early 1939; part of the British Expeditionary Force to Europe in 1940; evacuated from Dunkirk; then to North Africa, killed while helping a fellow guardsman at Enfidaville; buried Enfidaville Cemetery, Tunis; commemorated on the headstone for Stewart and Pansy Owen in Beaumaris Cemetery. Died 8 May 1943, age 23.

Bruce Lyndon Haynes, born in Fareham; living in Marianglas in 1939; was an Articled Clerk working towards Membership of the Institute of Chartered Accountants (grandparents lived at Glanfa, Beaumaris); volunteered for the Royal Artillery; killed in action; buried Medjez el Bab War Cemetery, Tunisia; commemorated on the family grave in Beaumaris Cemetery. Died 22 April 1941, age 24.

Donald Uvedale Owen, of 1 Plas Coch Terrace; educated at Beaumaris Grammar School and Liverpool University Medical School; joined the Territorial Army, sent to Egypt in charge of a General Hospital; developed aplastic anaemia, sent to Johannesburg for treatment, where he died; buried Johannesburg (West Park) Cemetery; commemorated on the family grave in Beaumaris Cemetery. Died 7 December 1943, age 43.

William Jones, of Holyhead and Beaumaris; husband of Selina Roberts of Cichle; served with the Royal Engineers, Kingsbridge Camp, during the First World War (a friend of David Roberts, Selina's brother); returned to work on Royal Mail ships out of Holyhead after the war. Died on board the Royal Mail Ship Cambria February 25, 1940, age 49.

Lady Emma Lilian Henderson, of London and France; married Mario Nikis; they ran Laboratoires Radioélectriques in Paris, supplied equipment to the French Resistance in the run-up to D-Day (6 June 1944); in 1948 the street where they had worked was renamed Rue Mario Nikis; both were betrayed to the Gestapo, questioned, sent to concentration camps; he died, she survived; she later married Sir Charles James Henderson; died in Cannes, France; commemorated in Beaumaris Cemetery. Died 3 March 2004, age 98.

James Arthur Davies, of Pembroke; educated at Trinity College, Carmarthen, and the London School of Economics; volunteered for the RAF during the Second World War; eighth member of a seven-man Lancaster crew, had specialised equipment to jam radar contact between German fighters and German HQ; the plane was shot down; bailed out over the Netherlands (member of the Caterpillar Club); was hidden by Dutch and Belgian families for six months; betrayed and taken to Stalag Luft 7 camp as prisoner of war; 19 January 1945, forced march to Stalag IIIA, arrived 9 February; in late May 1945 all were released, flew home in a Lancaster; Principal of Normal College, Bangor 1969-1985; worked for the NSPCC and Fund for MRI Scanner at Ysbyty Gwynedd; awarded the OBE in 1989; Honorary Burgess of Beaumaris, 2002; buried Beaumaris in Cemetery. Died February 2007, age 84.

Beaumaris Others:

Harold Edward Jones, of Beaumaris; a National Service man, probably killed by an accident just before being demobilised at RAF Valley; buried Beaumaris Cemetery (Commonwealth War Graves headstone of slightly different shape); not a war casualty. Died 7 April 1951, age 20.

Llanddona The Second World War:

The War Memorial at Capel Peniel, Llanddona, opened in September 1921. The inscription reads: Er Serchog Gof Am Ein Hanwyl Frodwyr A Gwympasant yn Y Rhyfel Mawr 1939-1945 (Bridget Geoghegan)

Ft. Sgt. John Hudson Staples R.A.F., educated Beaumaris Grammar School; Pilot RAFVR 656008 no 25 Squadron; accidentally killed while on duty on March 22, 1943 age 28; buried in Churchyard of St lestyn, Llaniestyn; son of John Price Staples and Jane E Staples of Cefn, Llaniestyn; his headstone shows a Mosquito plane.

Corp. Robert Roberts R.A., Corporal 1856870, Royal Engineers; killed in action May 30 1940 at the defence of Dunkirk age 38; buried in Coxyde

Military Cemetery; son of John and Grace Roberts, husband of Jane Roberts of Menai Bridge, father of several children.

Sec. Off. Benjamin Davies M.N.,

Second Officer Merchant Navy, SS Monmouth Coast; vessel sunk from torpedo strike (U-1305); one survivor, 16 died; died April 24 1945 age 36; commemorated Tower Hill Memorial.

Llanddona World War II, not on War Memorial: burial in the Churchyard of St Dona:

Lt. Robert William Hanmer Everett D.S.O., R.N.V.R., Lieutenant Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve Fleet Air Arm, HMS Heron; flew Hawker Hurricanes from catapult ships; killed in air crash January 29 1942, age 40; buried in Churchyard of St Dona, Llanddona.

Hair-raising, to say the least: a Hawker Hurricane IA being test-launched from a CAM (catapult aircraft merchant) ship at Greenock, Scotland, on 31 May 1941 (Imperial War Museum)

Footnote Capel Peniel, Llanddona, has closed; the War Memorial remains in situ. By mid-October work had been almost completed on the building of a smart stone wall around it, with access from the lane, so that it may be visited at any time.

How to stretch time Alex Horne

We've all experienced that feeling of a day that we're really enjoying going far too quickly, and a bad day that drags on and on, with the whole thing seemingly out of our control.

The two white rooks at St Dona's Church (Alex Horne)

It may seem fanciful, but earlier this year, my family and I dived head-first into the Champing Experience at Llanddona and somehow had a superb weekend that felt like it lasted a week!

How was this possible? I hear you ask. What powerful forces are at work on this small coastline corner of Ynys Môn?

When it comes to powerful forces, there are few to match Church Warden Lucy Low (or Lucy Law as she's known in televisual circles).

A 'champ'ion evening down on Llanddona beach (Anna Horne)

I have known Lucy since I was a child, but her achievements at Llanddona still impress me. Ecclesiastical buildings have always been designed not just for worship, but also to bring humanity together, and what better way to do that than to allow families to encounter the serenity of a holy building overnight. I shall certainly never forget the experience of waking up on my first morning's champing to be greeted by the sunlight streaming through the stained glass of the east window. There's more to the mix than that, however.

Modern life is frighteningly complex, and most of us struggle to make sense of it on a daily basis. What the champing weekend did for my family was to steer us away from the television, mobile phone, internet and a flushing toilet. The compostable throne kept the four of us royally entertained throughout our stay. A basic shared experience is all it takes to bring people together.

We were also blessed with mild weather, something that allowed us to climb the ramparts of Beaumaris Castle (13th century) and imagine Owain Glyndŵr storming the defences, then wander down to the beautiful Llanddona beach late into our first evening, collecting shells, a few bits of stray driftwood, and watching the sun slip below the horizon.

Another unforgettable shared experience.

Time travelled forward a couple of centuries the following day for our visit to Plas Newydd (15th century), and instead of tearing through the afternoon, we spent a serene moment on the garden slopes overlooking the Menai Strait, watching the sails drift towards Britannia Bridge. Time had slowed down once again.

Perhaps it was a secret ingredient within Lucy's home-baked cake, but that evening a contented haze settled upon us, as we chatted in the Church and wound down before nightfall.

The next morning, my wife and I were up with the lark for another walk on the beach, and not a soul in sight. Our mission...pebbles. Stone painting seems to have become a tradition at St Dona, so my plan was to fashion a handpainted pebble chess set.

Chess was actually banned for a short period by the Church in the middle ages, but so many clergy enjoyed playing the game, that this was swiftly renounced. Unfortunately, as the picture shows, time did not "stretch" long enough that morning (perhaps because we were heading home), and only two white rooks were created. See if you can find them when you become a Llanddona Champer, as you must if you want to "Stretch Time".

STRAIT TO THE HEART Stephen Marsden © 2016

Set me down upon your banks and I feel I'm made of clay

No wish to walk or talk, but drink your mood that day

Each yard of coast here lining up its fixed or moment's thrill

Ready to reward whoever would just stop and look, be still

A dozen redshanks skimming surf before Caernarfon's towers

Or share where Kyffin's eye was drawn along at Min y Mor

For Stephenson and Telford each to offer their salute

In building proud their island highways crossing shore to shore

Your bridges now as much your mark as swell or house or cove

As you flood east and past Porth Aethwy's huddled slopes

The towering pillars reaching to hold fast the isle of Môn

A low green ocean liner anchored by their steely ropes

Bangor there without you would seem so lost and dry,

Just another rambling city lifting one side to the sky

Without you there'd be no fields or paths or living views

Happy just to find their home where all of us would choose

Let slip from Felinheli to breeze and buffet your embrace

Picture postcard by Plas Newydd's house and lawns run wide While underneath you conjure ecosystems, seafood, salt,

Unseen worlds of wonder to and froing with the tide

May 2021: bathed in spring sunlight, a flotilla of Fifes is seen racing on the Strait off Beaumaris

In quiet ebb or darkening flood the mountains watch your days

A jag-backed dragon, tail to Llŷn, flanks warmed by evening sun

From green to brown to gold to pink, kaleidoscope of earth

Reaching down to meet your banks and merge there into one

And as you open wide your arms to turn again to sea

Your island side marks your end with Penmon's mournful bell

The prow-like rocks content to lose you to the other shore

For Llanfairfechan to the Orme to wave their grand farewell

Before the trees beyond the fields grew bushy and so bold

Our house had sight of your bluegrey beneath the mountains' fold

But any day I can return, cross you, look to see

My farther shore, my faithful strait, my Sea of Galilee

Stuart Haywood, Cymdeithas Gymreig Stokeon-Trent a'r Cylch

Ar ran ffrind yn Awstralia, Libby Jones, rwyf ar hyn o bryd yn ymchwilio i ddisgynyddion teulu oedd yn byw yn Nhŷ Philip, Llaniestyn. Digwyddodd hyn oherwydd bod Libby yn gwneud cryn dipyn o waith ymchwil ei hun a daeth ar draws cyfeiriad at fy llyfr, 'The Welsh in North Staffordshire'. Gwyddai Libby fod un o ddisgynyddion Tŷ Philip, Elias Hughes, wedi symud gyda'i deulu i Ogledd Swydd Stafford pan oedd yn blentyn ac felly, roedd ganddi ddiddordeb mewn prynu copi o fy llyfr.

Fy nod wrth ysgrifennu'r erthygl hon yw ceisio cysylltu ag eraill sy'n ddisgynyddion o deulu Tŷ Philip a gobeithio y bydd darllenwyr The Puffin hefyd gyda ddiddordeb.

Mae'r goeden achau ar hyn o bryd yn dechrau gyda phriodas Mary Jones o Dŷ Philip a Hugh Williams yn Eglwys Sant Iestyn ym 1814. Priododd un o'i plant, Catherine Williams, John Hughes yn 1849. Plentyn John a Catherine, sy'n rhan o'n hymchwil, yw Elias Hughes a aned yn 1852. Symudodd y teulu i Gaergybi cyn symud i Ogledd Swydd Stafford.

Bu farw tad Catherine y flwyddyn ar ôl ei geni ac ailbriododd ei mam, Mary, yn 1830 gyda David Jones. Un o'i plant oedd Margaret Jones, a aned yn 1833. Priododd Margaret ag Owen Jones (ganwyd 1826) yn 1852. Roedd plant Margaret ac Owen yn cynnwys tri mab, David Jones (1853), Owen Jones (1855) a John Jones (1860). Yn y cyfnod hwn, roedd y teulu'n dal i fyw yn Nhŷ Philip. Mae Libby yn ddisgynydd uniongyrchol i John; ef yw ei hen daid.

Hyfforddodd John Jones i fod yn weinidog gyda'r Methodistiaid ac ymfudodd i Awstralia o Lerpwl ar 5 Medi 1883 ar fwrdd y Duncow. Hwyliodd John y dosbarth llywio a pharhaodd y fordaith 120 diwrnod. Roedd y Parch Lewis Jones Rowlands hefyd ar fwrdd y llong ond yn nosbarth salŵn. Mae'n ymddangos bod John a'r Parchedig yn adnabod ei gilydd cyn y fordaith ac mae'n bosibl iawn bod y Parchedig wedi annog John i ymfudo.

Y llong haearn Duncow, 1715 tunnell, ym Mhorth Adelaide, De Awstralia. Fe'i hadeiladwyd yn 1878 gan W Doxford and Sons, Sunderland, Cofrestrwyd hi yn Lerpwl a'i pherchnogion oedd J Houston a Co, Yn ddiweddarach daeth yn yr Eidalwr Michele Bianchi (1899) a'r Vesuvio (1907), a chafodd ei chwalu yn 1914 The iron ship Duncow, 1715 tons, at Port Adelaide, South Australia. She was built in 1878 by W Doxford and Sons, Sunderland, She was registered at Liverpool and her owners were J Houston and Co, She later became the Italian Michele Bianchi (1899) and the Vesuvio (1907), and was broken up in 1914 (State Library, South Australia, via Stuart Haywood)

Os oes unrhyw un yn rhannu unrhyw un o'r hynafiaid uchod, byddai Libby a minnau â diddordeb mewn rhannu manylion. Byddai unrhyw wybodaeth am y Parch Lewis Jones Rowlands hefyd o ddiddordeb. Anfonwch e-bost ataf neu ysgrifennwch; mae fy manylion isod. Yn ail ran yr erthygl hon, byddaf yn disgrifio sut y dychwelodd John bum mlynedd ar hugain yn ddiweddarach a chael ei aduno â'i hanner cefnder, Elias Hughes a oedd wedi symud i Ogledd Swydd Stafford.

ANCESTRY HELP, PLEASE: PART 1 Stuart Haywood, Stoke-on-Trent & District Welsh Society

On behalf of a friend in Australia, Libby Jones, I am currently researching the descendants of a family that lived at $T\hat{y}$ Philip, Llaniestyn. This came about because Libby is doing a significant amount of research herself and came across a reference to my book, 'The Welsh in North Staffordshire'. Libby knew that one of the $T\hat{y}$ Philip descendants, Elias Hughes, had moved with his family to North Staffordshire when he was a child and hence, she was interested in purchasing a copy of my book.

My aim in writing this article is to try to connect with others that are descended from the Tŷ Philip family and hopefully, readers of The Puffin will also find it of interest.

The family tree currently starts with the marriage of Mary Jones of $T\hat{y}$ Philip and Hugh Williams at Eglwys Sant lestyn in 1814. One of their children, Catherine Williams married John Hughes in 1849. The child of John and Catherine who features in our research is Elias Hughes, born in 1852. The family moved to Holyhead before their move to North Staffordshire.

Catherine's father died the year after she was born and her mother, Mary remarried in 1830, to David Jones. One of their children was Margaret Jones, born in 1833. Margaret married Owen Jones (born 1826) in 1852. The children of Margaret and Owen included three sons David Jones (1853), Owen Jones (1855) and John Jones (1860). At this time, the family were still living at Tŷ Philip. Libby is a direct descendant of John; he is her great grandfather.

John Jones trained to be a Methodist minister and emigrated to Australia from Liverpool on 5 September 1883 aboard the Duncow. John sailed steerage class and the voyage lasted 120 days. The Rev Lewis Jones Rowlands was also on board but in saloon class. It would appear that John and the Reverend knew each other before the voyage and the Reverend may well have encouraged John to emigrate.

If anyone shares any of the above ancestry, Libby and I would be interested to share details. Any information regarding the Rev Lewis Jones Rowlands would also be of interest. Please e-mail me or write; my details are below.

In the second part of this article I will describe how John returned twenty-five years later and was reunited with his half-cousin, Elias Hughes who had moved to North Staffordshire.

ANGLESEY HEAD GARDENER HANGS UP HIS WELLIES Rebecca Andrews

Best wishes go to Jim Beverley for a very happy retirement from his role as Head Gardener at Llanidan Hall, near Brynsiencyn in Anglesey.

Jim Beverley in the walled garden (Kay Laurie)

Jim is an Anglesey resident, and has been an important part of the success of the National Garden Scheme (NGS) in the area.

He supported the opening of the wonderful walled garden at Llanidan Hall for the NGS for many years, and a lot of visitors have had the chance to meet him and congratulate him on his success, with the garden and with the animals housed within. Jim's was a lifetime's work, and his dedication was evident to all who came to see what a beautiful oasis had been created. The Gwynedd and Anglesey branch of the NGS hope that Jim might consider opening his own garden at Benllech in the future.

"Well done, Jim, for raising many tens of thousands of pounds for nursing charities through your kind assistance with the open garden events held at Llanidan Hall."

If you'd like to find out about future garden openings in the Anglesey area please visit the Gwynedd and Anglesey NGS Facebook page for updates, or visit the main NGS website for full details.

CWLWM SEIRIOL: AUTUMN UPDATE Delyth Phillipps, Community Engagement Officer

We celebrated National Meadows Day on 2 July with an event in Llanddona which incorporated a range of activities: a wildflower identification walk, a workshop to create a wildflower-themed suncatcher, a chance to learn how to weave willow to create flowers and the opportunity to find out more about how to create, maintain and improve wildflower meadows. The Llanddona Commons Local Nature Reserve is an ideal location for such an event as the variety of wildflowers to be found there is amazing! The biodiversity of the reserve is maintained using a range of measures, including rolling the bracken using working horses, grazing with cattle and scything.

During August the Cwlwm Seiriol project collaborated with Seiriol Alliance to deliver a programme of activities for children and their families in the Seiriol Ward. These activities were funded through the Welsh Government under a scheme launched last year called 'Summer of Fun'. Building on the success of last year, the aim was to support children and young people to take part in a range of sporting, cultural and play-based activities. The Seiriol Summer of Fun programme offered children the opportunity to get creative, connect with others, be active, learn new skills and spend time in nature. A total of 187 children attended the sessions, which took place in community spaces in Llandegfan, Llansadwrn, Llanddona, Llangoed, Llanfaes and Beaumaris.

During the autumn we ran a couple of fungi forays. A fungi foray is a chance to find, identify and record the types of fungi found growing in a particular habitat. We shall also be running a mini Woodland Skills Festival for local primary schools in Llangoed. Activities will include; building bird/bat boxes, learning about the dark sky in a planetarium, being a botanist for a day and trying out some green wood craft. The focus of activities over the winter months will be woodland management and there will be plenty of opportunities to learn coppicing skills.

As always, keep an eye on our Facebook page for details of events or get in touch and add your name to our email list.

A FUNNY THING HAPPENED...

Debbie Oulton, Llanddona Writers Group

A funny thing happened

- On the way to the car
- Two ladies in short shorts, one with no bra
- Cornettos in hand, they meandered along
- Enjoying the sunshine and singing a song.

- Out of the blue came a threat from the sky
- I called out a warning. "Look out! " was my cry

An avian monster swooped down with a scream

Hell-bent on acquiring a tasty ice-cream.

"Gerroff!" cried one lassie, and

"Shoo!" said her friend

Whilst waving her handbag, hoping to send

The bold bandit packing, without any lunch

But it wouldn't end well - that was my hunch.

I did try to warn them that gulls can recall

- The faces of those who annoy them at all
- But the lassies just laughed and went on their way

Pleased that they'd made that big bird fly away.

Around the next corner, high up on a gate

The rascal was listening, lying in wait

When they stopped in a doorway to light up a fag

The seagull aimed straight for the girl with the bag.

She ran off in terror, bird poop in her hair

As the wily old buzzard took to the air

His aim was so good and ever so true

The second girl's face was splattered with poo.

With a tilt of his head and a triumphant cry

He fixed his next target with a black, beady eye

No, it wasn't myself he had set his sights on But the bag I was holding, containing a scone.

- I laid it down gently and gave him a wink
- Wily old birds understand this, I think

He puffed up his feathers and shook out his tail Snatched up my offering and let out a wail.

He cocked his head, listening. What was that sound?

Those ludicrous lassies were still hanging 'round

I watched as he strutted away, in no rush

For a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush.

- Move 1 comprises the white rook moving one square to the right, taking the pawn, putting the black king in check and forcing the black king to take the rook.
- Move 2 involves the white gueen moving diagonally one square up and to the right, checkmating the black king.

GREETINGS FROM BEAUMARIS DOWN HERE (THERE)!

Liz Millman, Learning Links International

We have had a long wet winter, but now spring is here, with a wonderful display of flowers from all parts of the world, as well as our lovely native plants.

One of the many kinds of wattle that flower so freely in the spring (Liz Millman)

The Welsh Government has launched a new initiative, Taith, about developing Wales's worldwide links with funds for exchange visits, so if there are any teachers over there (that's here!) who would like to link with a school over here (that's there!) in or around Beaumaris, Melbourne, please contact me.

We had tried to start educational links before COVID hit, so I know that there are schools that will be interested.

WARM SPACES IN THE COMMUNITY Andrew Perrott

I saw this on the Guardian's website last month.

Martin Lewis (MoneySavingExpert; see our debt article in The Puffin 40, page 7) has teamed up with the Chartered Institute of Library and Information Professionals (CILIP: the UK's library and information association) to offer advice to libraries that are considering becoming 'warm banks'.

'Warm banks' or warm spaces are places where vulnerable people and those hit hard by the cost of living can spend time.

Lewis tweeted about warm banks earlier this year: "Can't believe I'm writing this, but I wonder if this winter we'll need 'warm banks', the equivalent of food banks where people who can't afford heating are invited to spend their days, at no cost, with heating (e.g., in libraries, public buildings, etc)."

Lewis asked CILIP to research and collate best-practice information, and the resulting guide is "not just for libraries, it's for any organisation wanting to set up a warm space", like village halls and community centres.

Tilly Barker (Dogtated To Andrew Perrott)

The Boss collared me early last month when I wasn't looking. 'It's dogtation time again,' he said, 'your readers expect...' 'But it's my seventh birthday on the ninth,' I said. He ignored me, even though I looked at him in a dognified manner; that's not easy when one has an old teacloth draped round one's neck.

Yes... he pounced as soon as he'd finished cleaning my eyes, before I could take evasive action. The teacloth stops the water running everywhere...oh, you know what it's like... Well. My readers might expect, but I'm going to have a good whinge, regardless. You see, I hate having my whiskers combed. I

Bad Whiskers begone! This is what I can look like when my whiskers have been combed into place...

...but after a few minutes...

The Boss says that I'm lazy; I just like sleeping under armchairs when I'm not sleeping in them

I've been helping my friend Valary collect the apples in her garden (Valary Wakefield)

One travels to the shops in boudoir style, regardless of one's whiskery woes...my personal private back-seat bed is very comfortable really, really hate it. He insists on combing my whiskers after he's done my eyes because they're always messy, he says. I can't help it if every day's a Bad Whisker Day; it's just the way my whiskers grow, and he should accept it as one of those unfortunate facts of life. He simply doesn't understand. He does say that I brush up nicely afterwards, though, but the brushing-up goes awry before long.

The Boss says that I'm lazy. I'm not lazy at all. I just do things as slowly as possible, and I use stalling tactics like stretching and yawning. They always work. I'm practising being slow because I don't see at all well, and I don't want to bump into things.

An armchair with those rod things between the front and back legs is so useful for getting out of the way. I can lie there using a rod as a headrest while I try to transfix the Boss with my beady eyes through my whiskers. It was just the place to be in the summer because it was much too hot to think of going out for a saunter, even in the evening.

I used to be able to go to visit people whenever I wanted, which was nice, but in the summer he decided to have a gate installed to stop my wandering. I was not pleased, so now I sit and howl whenever I know Billy the sheepdog is nearby. That means that he has to take me to see him, so I suppose that the gate wasn't too bad in the end... He lets me go to visit my friend Valary, and I helped her to collect the apples in her garden. That was fun because apples are nearly as good as tennis balls. Valary gave me one to take home, and I ate most of it bit by bit.

I like to go shopping, and I have a rather snappy tartan-style bed on the back seat of the car. It's so comfortable. I don't actually go into shops, you understand; I just go for the ride. I love going for rides. He leaves me in the car while he shops, and people talk to me through the window... unless it's hot, of course, when I stay at home.

There...my dogtation is done.

Footnote Tilly's followers will know that she's had eye problems for some time, connected with 'Westie dry-eye'. A visit to the vet early last month showed that she makes no tears. She's had almost no sight in her left eye for a couple of years, and it seems now that her right eye is going the same way. In short, she's slowly going blind, or at best will have very limited eyesight in due course.

My treatment of her eyes appears to be working in that here eyes are in good condition as far as moistness is concerned, so I must continue to do what I do, and have her eyes checked regularly by the vet as well.

She's a much-loved (and wilful) little Westie, and will be looked after very carefully: she's responding well to my training her to go slowly when there are obstacles about or doors being opened.

Like Gloria Gaynor, Tilly will survive!

Editorial Policy

- The Puffin is a community journal. It does not become involved in matters such as politics, local or national, but is intended to be a means of bringing people and communities together, celebrating our 'sense of community' and the beautiful part of the world in which we live, so please be kind, courteous and respectful. 'Hot' topics related to the local context are fine, but we ask that people respect the fact that alternative views may be valid as well.
- We welcome news, letters and interesting articles, in Welsh and in English, as long as they are attributed to an author; please don't send us anything marked 'not for publication'.
- The views expressed in The Puffin do not necessarily represent those of the Editorial Team.
- We review all items for material that is obviously libellous or offensive, but we cannot check for factual accuracy because we might not be sufficiently expert on the topic, and because of time constraints.
- If you have strong feelings about what is said, or is not said, in The Puffin, don't bottle it up: get in touch with us or join the group of volunteers who form the Editorial Team who enable its production.
